ABSTRACT

A method for transferring data via a data bus, in particular via a PCI bus. The method provides for a second additional memory area in which all physical addresses of the memory pages are stored, to be set up in a main memory of an arithmetic-logic unit. During data transfer the requisite physical addresses are transferred autonomously.

5